

METHOD FOR RECYCLING A SUBSTRATEABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a method for recycling a substrate that has a residue on its surface and a detachment profile resulting from an implantation process. The method includes removing the residue from the substrate to a level substantially equivalent to that of the detachment profile, thus obtaining a substantially uniform planar surface on the substrate, and then polishing the entire surface of the substrate to eliminate defects.